Mr. and Mrs. Ted Froggatt and son Jimmy spent Thanksgiving day in Calgary with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Boos and family of Calgary spent the holiday in town visiting relatives.

Ellmer Bollinger is at present confined to a Calgary hospital suffering from a strained back. A couple of weeks ago he injured his back while attempting to lift a heavy object.

Thanksgiving Day was a quiet day in town. All the sportsmen who could get away spent the holiday either hunting or fishing and most of them report having had very good luck.

A gravel pit is going to be opened on the reserve near the river and gravel rushing machine set up. It is the government's intention to gravel the new road that has been built this fall. If it is done traffic should be able to get through to Calgary regardless of weather conditions.

Mrs. E. Bannister of Calgary spent the weekend in town visiting her sister, Mrs. A. N. McLeay.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene LeDor and little son Gordie, of Red Deer, motored to Gleichen to spend their Thanksgiving holidays. They were accompanied by Mrs. E. Bannister who had been visiting in Red Deer for the past week, also by Jack Reid of Edmonton who came down to spend the holidays with his father Mr. A. Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Warner left Monday morning for Idaho where they will spend several weeks visiting with relatives away from Mr. Warner will call on a brother he has not seen for forty years.

J. C. Madge, proprietor of the Crown Transfer, Calgary; A. W. Sheffield, manager of the Beaver Lodge Company, Calgary and Robert Staback, also of Calgary were in town Sunday. The two former gentlemen left shortly after their arrival for the Brooks area to hunt game till the next day, while Mr. Staback remained over to visit relatives. He returned to Calgary on Monday night's train.

There were a large number of people who reside in Calgary, spent the weekend in the district visiting relatives and friends. The Wednesday train Monday evening was filled to overflowing when the Gleichen visitors climbed aboard.

Bert Boos accompanied by Miss Betty Campbell of Calgary spent the holiday in town visiting at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Boos. Monday in company with Leslie Menard, Miss R. Kreuze and Chas Evans went to the Brooks area to hunt game birds. All were successful in getting some birds. They report that there were many hunters in that district and birds were plentiful.

It's hard to tell which you notice first these evenings—the music of young voices or the sharp smell of burning leaves. But where there's smoke there's laughter, and time for a chat—at any rate, on the streets where the leaves have collected like too much gold. They would burn better when drier and browner. But where there's a wind there's a way to dispose of the rubbish before some gusty tomorrow under one's good work. So the group gathered about the smouldering pile lifts the masses of yellow to let the flames breathe, but the job takes more time than anyone but the children could hope. The dogs bound around in circles, plunging through to bark at some timid flame. Joe Smith comes up the street and explains why he missed the bus. Mrs. Smith passes by with a word of caution for little Billy. And a voice comes from the front porch: "What's over is to be done with those leaves had better be done in about five minutes, for supper's nearly ready." Last smokes, some people think, come simply from burning leaves. But there is more to it than that.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM NOTES

Every field should be windproofed. Each year at this season it seems advisable to emphasize the necessity for "wind-proofing" our soils prepare.

PIETHAD IN MODERN STYLE

The pithead gear of the new shaft at Mosley Common Colliery, Lancashire, is constructed in a clean white concrete. In addition, the National Coal Board is to build the shaft to the fall, winter, and spring oil drifting period. In the oil-shaft winter drifting is the greatest oil hazard, while in other areas care oil starts to move as soon as the snow disappears. Usually too there is a considerable drifting in the late fall. All of this can be prevented quite easily.

Every farm operator in Western Canada knows that if he has straw it is likely to drift unless it is covered. It is too late now to prepare a good trash cover or to get a cover, so if soil is in a dangerous condition the only remedy is to make it rough. This can be done either by mold board plowing or by tilling.

Some farmers on medium textured soils, such as loam and silt loams, have found that plowing summerfallow in full protects them until until the rain is high enough to make them safe in the spring. Even in a dry fall, such as this, summerfallow almost invariably are moist enough to plow. If plowing is done it must be deep enough to turn under the wet mulch that has accumulated, or to leave the top sticky. Usually it is not safe to depend on fall plowing in light soils or on clay.

Lining is the only safe procedure on sandy or clay soils, and it is preferred to plowing on the medium textured soils by most farmers. Lining can be done easily and cheaply by equipping a duck-foot cultivator with litter shovels which can be purchased from the implement dealer. Only three or four shovels are required for a cultivator as lifting forces may be placed four feet apart. If a duck-foot cultivator is not available a one-way disc can be converted into a litter by removing all but every fourth disc. Litter should be at right angles to the prevailing wind.

If fields are permitted to go into the winter without being properly protected winter tilling with a one-way lister will be required, and any field that is likely to drift in the spring should be cultivated or plowed as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

The methods described here have been used so many times with success that one does not hesitate to say that it is sheer carelessness to let fields drift. Every field should be wind proofed.

Bow Valley Schools Have Complete Staff

All schools at present in operation in the Bow Valley School Division are now fully staffed. This is the first time in the past few years that the division has been in such a favorable position in respect to teachers.

A new heating system to be installed in the Arrowwood school has been approved by the board. This will give Arrowwood a fully modern air-conditioned system. Installation procedures are now well underway and should be completed shortly.

At a previous meeting of the board of trustees the secretary was instructed to call for tenders on supplying coal to all the schools in the Bow Valley school division. The tender submitted by Mr. A. Hansen has been accepted. Nearly all the bins in the various schools have now been filled. These bins will again be filled at a later date before impassable winter roads set in.

A resolution from the local board at Queenstown requesting that their school be wired for electric lighting and that 50 percent of the expense involved be charged to their trust fund was approved by the divisional board. It is also understood that Queenstown is considering the purchase, from trust funds, of a 10 mm sound projector. This should prove a highly desirable type of instructional equipment and would be very useful in this centre.

Milo has also taken steps to obtain a sound projector. An additional room will be available in this centre for projection purposes. It is understood that the Pioneer school, presently located on the Milo site, has been completely renovated and set up as a primary school. This is a fairly large room and should adequately accommodate grades I, II and III in Milo.

Not long ago we saw a dog lying by the wayside seriously ill. Later passing the same spot with a friend the dog was found to be dead. The friend was a lover of dogs and paused a few moments in contemplation and then quoted in part Yeats's tribute to a dog named Drum. "The one absolute unselfish friend that man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is his dog. Gentlemen of the jury, a man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness, and when the last scene comes, and death takes his master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by his grave will be the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes dead but open in true deathfulness, faithful and true to death." Add to these the instances where dogs have been known to warn their sleeping masters of a house afire, or where they have found men trapped or injured and gone for help. Add their services in frightening away thieves, their protection to women left alone in a house at night, add their patience, their loyalty, the stability, and men, indeed, has much he can say about dogs.

Every day of the week is set apart by some people as the Sabbath—Sunday by the Christians; Monday by the Greeks; Tuesday by the Persians; Wednesday by the Assyrians; Thursday by the Egyptians; Friday by the Mohammedans and Saturday by the Jews and Seventh Day Adventists.

China is only a little larger than the United States in area, but her population is four times as great. Her civilization dates back 5000 years or more. The Chinese have played polo since A.D. 600.

OBITUARY

LEWIS CHRISTIAN BARTSCH
Lewis Christian Bartsch, 46, well known in Gleichen was killed Saturday night when his light delivery truck sideswiped a tractor and rolled over in the ditch on the Banff highway east of Cochrane. Lew was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bartsch, who lived in Gleichen for many years before moving to Calgary. Lew was a frequent visitor to town.

The Alberta telling of the accident says in part: "Bartsch collided with the rear end of some farm equipment being pulled by a tractor. The tractor was driven by Douglas L. Masters of Cochrane. According to the R.C.M.P., who investigated the accident Bartsch was proceeding in the same direction as the tractor. As it was dark at the time (7:05 p.m.) he apparently didn't see the vehicle until it was too late to avoid an accident. The truck struck the machinery on the rear left side, then swerved into the ditch.

"R.C.M.P. rushed Bartsch to Cochrane but he was dead upon arrival. No other persons were in the truck. Born in Hood River, Oregon, Mr. Bartsch moved to Gleichen in 1902 and resided there for 20 years. He was manager of T. H. Peacock Ltd. in Lethbridge for 12 years. During the war he was connected with the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. He was proprietor of the Horse Shoe coffee shop in Black Diamond and the Swiss Delicatessen in Calgary up until a month ago. He was a member of the Lethbridge Kinmen and Travelers Association, and manager of the Kinmen hockey team in Lethbridge. The funeral will be held Wednesday at 1:15 p.m. and cremation will follow.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

THE SPECIAL ROOM

By BASCOM BIGGERS III

NORMA smiled secretly at the gift she had gotten Sam for their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Then she put it away and went back to the kitchen to finish lunch. Twenty-fifth anniversary next week. Silver anniversary. It was a long time to the together. There was only one thing she needed to make it complete. Maybe Sam would have the answer when he came in from the postoffice for lunch.

She turned the radio up a little. She guessed if she lived to be a hundred she would never get accustomed to the silence after having known the hustle and bustle of two boys. It was two years now since Harold, the oldest, had married. Bobby had naturally been first. In spite of the two years, she still imagined now and then that she could hear them bustling around in their rooms.

It seemed a little odd that they both had to marry out-of-town girls. Bob had hoped that Norma, who had been would settle in Anderson. But when they hadn't, she had taken it gracefully. It was natural for girls to want to live near their parents. Like to him, saying, "You son of a gun, the mother loses him, but when the daughter marries, the mother gains a son."

She heard the front screen slam and in a minute Sam grabbed her from the back, binding her arms to her side and burying a kiss in her greying hair.

"Guess what came today," he said. "You got a letter from one of the boys," she said excitedly. He released her and went to the refrigerator, taking out the pitcher and nonchalantly pouring himself a glass of water. There was a mischievous twinkle in his eyes. "Whatever made you think that?" he said.

"Sam, you stop teasing me, now. It was a letter from one of the boys."

"None," he said, sitting down on the kitchen stool and rubbing the back of his thinning hair. "It wasn't a letter from one of the boys."

"Oh," he said flatly. "It was a letter from each of the boys," he laughed.

"Oh, Sam," she said, laughing and hugging him. "They're coming aren't they? They're coming for the anniversary. I can tell."

"Yes, and bringing their wives, too," he said, hanging her letters, "read them for yourself."

When she finished the letters, she brushed away the tears that had collected in the corners of her brown eyes and hurried to set lunch on the table. She still had the characteristic little movements that reminded Sam of the first meal she had cooked for him. They were very apparent when she was happy as she was now.

"Now," she said, passing him the bread, "we've got to figure out where we're going to put them."

"Why, that's no problem. Besides the sleeping porch, we've got two extra bedrooms now. The boys old room and the special guest room."

"That special guest room is just the trouble," she said, frowning over her head tea. "Which one will we put it in?"

The special guest room had always been kind of a secret joke with them. It was the room which the boys side world did not share. Whenever there were several guests in the house, they always put the favorites or "special" ones in the guest room. The others got put on the sleeping porch. The sleeping porch was nice enough, but it just wasn't to be compared with the guest room which had the best of everything in the house.

Norma had brought the idea from her family about a special guest room. It was almost a tradition. It was considered an honor to find a piece of furniture or an article worthy of being put in the room.

"I see what you mean," said Sam. "We don't want to show partiality."

"Sam, you're shaking her head. 'No, we certainly don't.'"

"No," said Norma, shaking her head. "No, we certainly don't."

Secret The Outside World Did Not Share

She was remembering the terrible time they had when Bobby got it into his head that Harold was the favorite because he was older and had been first. It had started when Harold took a trip with Sam and Bobby wasn't well enough to go.

She had talked to Bobby at length about it, and they had shed many tears over it. She tried to explain, and it wasn't easy to do with thirteen-year-olds. That parents could love their children in different ways without loving one more than the other. She tried to show him how it was like with friends, who loved them for different reasons, but that didn't make you love one less than the other. If she had twenty sons, she told him, she would love the last just as much as the first.

But she had never been certain that she understood. And from that day to this there was always just a portion of fear in the back of her mind that made her measure what she did for one son against what she did for the other. She couldn't risk it with the special guest room.

"We could just use it at all," she said.

"No," said Norma, "that's a smile look suspicious." And then a smile came and she shut the special guest room.

"Sam, we won't be the most special ones in the house, but the special occasion will be for us. You and I will stay in the special guest room."

"We may have. It will be our anniversary gift from the house."

"Or course," said Sam, getting up and hugging her. "Norma, you're a genius. The boys will love it. And so will I. After twenty-five beautiful years together, a man and his wife deserve a special room together."

Norma smiled happily, thinking that the room with Sam was a special room.

Love For Farm Cow Kills Wild Moose

BARRIE, Ont. — A wild bull moose died from inflammation of the lungs — love-sick for a red cow in a farmer's barnyard.

The sickness was brought on by struggles with men who took him away from the farmyard and back to his natural habitat.

The 1,200-pound moose wandered out of the bush and struck up a friendship with the cow on Lawrence Street.

The farm near Port Severn, Ont., 30 miles north of here on Georgian Bay.

Lands Department officials decided it was dangerous to leave the animal in a settled area with the mating season approaching.

They finally trapped him away to a provincial park.

But the park people weren't strong enough to hold him so he was taken to a barn on another nearby farm where he died.

Arctic Baby Bonus . . . How Best To Spend It

It has been somewhat difficult providing the Eskimos with health instructions, and a visit by the nurse, as depicted above, is an altogether too infrequent occurrence. When the Family Allowance posters find their way into the igloos of the Arctic, health information and facts on disease prevention will help to relieve much suffering.

(Written Specially for this Newspaper by Central Press Canadian)

To reach the eye of Eskimo mothers, a unique poster printed in Eskimo syllabics and telling how best to spend family allowance money in the land of ice and snow, is now being distributed throughout the Canadian Arctic regions.

Issued by the department of national health and welfare, this poster, first of its kind in the world, gives evidence of the far-reaching humanitarian benefits of Canada's social security program. For not only does the Canadian government give every mother in Canada, rich or poor, a monthly cheque to help buy food and clothing for her children, but the government also provides mothers with information on how best to spend their allowances.

It is easy to provide the English and French-speaking mothers of the more populated areas with health education along with their cheques.

But it has been quite a problem finding a way of reaching into the igloos of the Arctic with facts on food, sanitation, disease prevention and other health information.

With the sailing of the little ship Regina Polar from Montreal to the Arctic via Hudson Strait, this problem has been overcome. For, aboard this ship which makes an annual trip to the Arctic with supplies, is one very important parcel this time. It contains 100 family allowance posters.

These will be hung up in the trading posts throughout the Arctic as the supply ship makes her rounds of the north.

With its dramatic photo of an Eskimo mother and her papoose, the big card tells Canadian Eskimos the items they may purchase with their family allowance money. Translated from the Eskimo tongue, the items listed on this history-making poster appear as:

Dried or evaporated milk; baby cereal; flour; Canada approved vitamin B only; rolled oats; oatmeal; salt; biscuits; corn, corn syrup, molasses; marmalade; jam; fresh or powdered eggs; peanut butter, cheese, canned or fresh meat; fresh or dried fruit, fruit juices, canned tomatoes; green or dehydrated vegetables, rice, beans, salt, baking powder.

Other items listed for the Eskimos are:

PLEASED CHILDREN

When weather spoiled attendance at a fête in Bristol, England, recently, a caterer had 8,000 cakes and cream buns left. He told assistants to give them to children who might like them. They were gone in five minutes.

There are close to 8,000 Eskimos living in Canada's northland, according to the last Dominion census. Their general health and living standards are reported to be low. Family allowances are already relieving and preventing much suffering in the lonely igloos.

Standards Of Health

IT IS ENCOURAGING TO LEARN of the progress which has been made by medical science in conquering disease and prolonging life. While we hear a great deal about this battle against disease, concrete facts concerning the results which are achieved are not always so well known. Recent statistics published in Canada, show that the average life span here has been increased since the beginning of the century from 44 years to 66 years. In the United States, life expectancy is at present 67 years, almost a year more than the figure for 1945, and nearly two years longer than in 1939. One of the reasons for the rise in the average life span in both countries is believed to be the decrease in infant and maternal mortality rates which have taken place during the past few years.

Still Take High Toll

While the normal life expectancy has been lengthened considerably, there are still a number of diseases which take a high toll of people in later life and there is still much to be done to improve present standards of health. In a recent article on this subject, published by the Royal Bank of Canada, it was pointed out that there should be no complacency over our present records, but that unremitting efforts should be made to further decrease mortality rates and lengthen the number of years which the average person may expect to live. It suggests that what is now needed is a general realization of "the possibilities of healthful living rather than complacency over reduction of death rates," and that the schools are the best places in which to introduce programmes of healthful living to our people.

Much Is Done In Schools

A survey commenced in 1945 by the Canadian Education Association and the Canadian Public Health Association resulted in the conclusion that greater interest should be shown by the school and the community in the physical welfare of the school children as well as in their mental and emotional problems. It is now agreed that good physical health is necessary to a child if he is to progress satisfactorily at school and it is apparent that attention to the health of our children will undoubtedly have far reaching results in laying the foundations for a generation of healthier and more mentally alert adults. In recent years more interest has been taken by the schools in the welfare of the pupils in matters of nutrition, dental care, mental and emotional problems and physical defects. While there are a great many other aspects to the question of improving national health standards, it is apparent that the school is one place in which much can be accomplished in building healthier communities and eventually further reducing mortality rates and increasing the average life span of the people.

HONEY CROP

The Canadian honey crop in 1948 is currently estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 43,938,000 pounds or 14.5 per cent. more than was harvested in 1947. This is a preliminary figure as the crop was not all harvested at the time the estimate was made. A revised estimate will be released in December.

How To Get Quick Relief From Sore, Painful Piles

I can help most pile sufferers. I believe I can help you too if you want relief from the itching soreness and burning pain of piles. My Hem-Roid treatment is different. Hem-Roid is an internal medicine—a small tablet taken with a glass of water. It corrects the conditions INSIDE your body that cause you such intense pile soreness and pain. But I'll be honest with you. Hem-Roid seems to help some pile sufferers more than others so I want to protect those who are not satisfied. I refuse to ask people to pay for something that does not help them as much as they expect it to. If Hem-Roid helps you, surely it is worth the small cost. Otherwise I want you to have your money back. I'll take your word. I find people are honest about such things. All I ask is you use Hem-Roid as directed for 10 days. Then if you are not satisfied return what you did not use and get your money back. This is an unusual offer but Hem-Roid is an unusual medicine. It has been sold on a refund promise for over 40 years. I am not asked to make many refunds so it must help most folks who use it. At all drug stores.

Fire Losses In Canada Show Increase

Although five of Canada's nine provinces showed lower per capita fire losses in 1947 than in 1946, the Dominion as a whole recorded an increase from $4.01 to $4.53 per capita.

The four provinces where increases occurred were British Columbia from $3.31 to $5.01, Manitoba from $2.62 to $3.18, Nova Scotia from $4.11 to $5.46, Ontario from $3.96 to $4.53.

The number of fires generally was lower than in the previous year, but a substantial proportion of the larger monetary loss was due to the increased number of large fires where the loss exceeded $50,000.

These large fires numbered 155 with an aggregate financial loss of over $20.2 millions. In 1946 there were 138 such fires with a total loss of $18 millions.

Lowest per capita loss as usual was shown by Saskatchewan at $1.76.

Second to Saskatchewan came Alberta with a per capita loss of $2.59, conditions in Alberta being somewhat similar to those in Saskatchewan, although Alberta is more highly industrialized.

Highest per capita loss was shown by British Columbia at $5.01, against $3.41 in 1946. Total losses in British Columbia at over $8.3 millions were swollen substantially by a number of large fires, one at Port Alberni amounting to $2.1 millions, another in Yale County to $300,000 and one in Victoria County of $272,000. In addition there were a number of other fires with losses of over $100,000.

DUNCAN, B.C.—Salmon are getting finicky about their bait at Cowichan Bay. While two men were fishing here a healthy specimen leaped up, nipped one of them in the back, and fell back into the water.

CANORA, Sask.—Officials of the Saskatchewan Co-operative creamery have announced a $70,000 building will go under construction shortly to replace one gutted by fire in August.

WINNIPEG.—A 14-year-old St. Vital boy was credited with saving two homes from a brush fire. Firemen arrived to find David had the flames under control.

HIGH RIVER, Alta.—Saskatoons or June berries, generally found in June or early July, turned up near this southern Alberta town three months late. A group of berry-pickers found a well-laden patch of Saskatoons and returned with 20 gallons of fruit.

SASKATOON.—A 10-acre field of Montcalm barley grown by W. E. Myers, Nipawin district farmer, yielded 900 bushels, or an average of 90 bushels to the acre, it was reported. Machinery Gears Made From Paper

CALGARY. — Plastics and paper combined have resulted in production of "innumerable" paper products, ranging from beer cartons to machine gears, W. F. Gillespie, president of the Pulp and Paper Association of America said here.

When combined with plastics, paper can be used to make gears for quiet-running machinery, and boxes which can carry anything from refrigerators to bed springs.

Eskimos In Arctic Not So Primitive

HALIFAX. — Canadian navy men, just back from a Hudson Bay cruise, tell this one about their visit to a tiny Arctic settlement.

An Eskimo in a kayak paddled out to meet the destroyers Haida and Nootka. A sailor tossed him a pack of cigarettes, thinking he would probably eat them.

The Eskimo fooled the tars. Not only did he know what to do with the cigarettes—he pulled out a lighter to start one.

Prevention Of Future Floods To Be Costly

WINNIPEG.—Prevention of future floods along low-lying areas surrounding the Red River—which sweeps up through the Dakotas to its Lake Winnipeg basin in mid-central Manitoba—will cost approximately $17,000,000.

City Engineer W. D. Hurst made this report following an extended survey of the river in company with engineers from the Provincial, Dominion and United States governments.

The survey was prompted by flood conditions last spring, when millions of dollars worth of damage was caused when the river went on its wilder rampage within the memory of old-timers.

Approximately $1,500,000 already has been spent on flood control work by the United States Government in the valley, another $3,300,000 now is being utilized and authorization has been granted for another $12,250,000 worth of work.

An English Journey

By Walter Lages representing the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Woodstock was the birthplace of the Black Prince and is a picturesque, entirely unspoiled village.

Here is located Bleheim, the famous palace given by a grateful nation to the Duke of Marlborough for his valor in war.

The palace is a magnificent show place which must be seen to be appreciated. The house itself covers three acres and is set in a park of 2000 acres, the grounds having been laid out by that great artist Capability Brown, who is said to have planned the trees and avenues to represent a plan of the Battle of Bleheim. The gardens are some of the finest in England and are visited by thousands, and 60 gardeners were formerly employed to keep them up. The wall around the estate is 20 miles long.

Like most large homes, the government made use of much of it during the war and the Ministry of Works has erected a number of shacks near the palace, which are eyecores.

At Dorchester stands the famous Abbey, an impressive ancient building, in perfect condition, although the walls were built about 1150. Before that was a Saxon Cathedral built about 1050 and long before that a Roman camp stood on the site.

The Abbey is long building over 200 feet in length, filled with interesting features including a Jesse window, the figures of which are sculptured in stone at each intersection of a million. It is one of the most interesting abbey in all England to visit. There is an interesting old Church dating from 1586 and many pretty old thatched houses. Here is an example of the vicarages found in many old places in England. It is bigger than the church and in this case is a building of 10 large rooms set in spacious grounds. The vicar rents more than half of the house to other families.

Woolstone is one of the unique villages in England. Nestling far from any bus or railway route, every thatched house was a perfect picture and there is an inn over 600 years old.

The entire village consisting of 100, 20 cottages, three farms, and a large manor house was recently offered for sale. The price asked for the whole thing was $5,000 pounds but the best offer was only about 50,000 pounds so it was withdrawn.

At Kingston Loyal there is an unique relic, the Blowing Stone. This huge rock is honeycombed with holes and by blowing in one of them, a note is produced which is said to carry to heard seven miles.

Legend says it was used by the Druids to summon their fighters, and that King Alfred sounded it to call his supporters to repel the invaders. When his followers won the battle the White Horse carved on the Down by removing the turf and exposing the chalk was cut to commemorate the victory. Some of this is referred to in the book "Tom Brown's School Days" The author of which lived at a nearby town.

It is apparent that any plan for the mobilization of the national resources for the defence of our country, in addition to providing for maximum use of our manufacturing facilities, and the ultimate measure of standardization of weapons and equipment, must also take into account the supply of raw materials in sufficient quantity to keep our factories fully occupied and producing to capacity.

It is a matter of common knowledge that in spite of our tremendous natural resources in minerals and grown crops, there are many essential materials which we must import, in some cases from overseas. It is also common knowledge that, in the happy event of war, we will be cut off from the normal sources of these scarce and strategic materials. In view of these obvious facts, it is somewhat disturbing to note that there has been no announcement and no evidence of action regarding the vitally important matter of stockpiling those materials and commodities now imported, which are essential to the successful prosecution of our defensive plans.

We note that our neighbors to the south plan to spend some two and half billion dollars in stockpiling dirty critical materials for use in the event of emergency. If we are to fulfill our responsibilities regarding the North American defence, we should be able to spend an amount in the ratio of our respective national incomes which for us would be approximately $140,000,000. There is no doubt but that industry would co-operate to the full in providing stockpiles, and might possibly arrange to store the materials and arrange a turnover of stocks if insured against loss due to price fluctuations.

As the productive capacity of North America should be regarded largely as an entity, rather than as split up groups, so the stockpiling of materials should be co-ordinated, and plans made for equitable allotment of available stocks. Perhaps something is being done along these lines. If so, we would like to know, if not, we should see that it is done.
